Description of the (Research) Team

AP is a Warranted Partnership of Periti (Architects and Civil Engineers) and an ISO Certified Company. Headed by a Board of Governance made up of two executive directors, Konrad Buhagiar and David Felice, and non-executive director Reinhold Karner, the team is supported by a Board of Management made up of three areas: Practice (Jacques Borg Barthet), Innovation (Erica Giusta) and Management (Tom Van Malderen). Projects are led by Design Directors and their respective teams (of both architects and engineers) having expertise in managing large-scale design projects or a portfolio of multiple projects of varying scale and complexity. AP Valletta fosters an integrated design team and process approach to projects assuring a responsive and effective service.

Expertise of the Team Leader

Erica Giusta is director of innovation at AP, where she is responsible for research, business development and a portfolio of projects focusing on built environment’s sustainable transformations. Before joining AP, she worked for the Publicis Groupe in Milan. She read for an MA in Sustainable Architecture at Politecnico di Torino, Italy and a Post-Graduate Master in Marketing & Communications at the Sole24Ore Business School in Milan, Italy. She writes for a number of design and architecture magazine. Among other projects, Erica was responsible for the competition Berlin-Brandenburg 2070, the vision for a masterplan for the regeneration of the historic centre of Tashkent, and the repurposing of a vast ex-fuel storage area in Malta. She is also currently contributing to an important academic publication on sustainable heritage, coordinated by University of London (UK) for Routledge, in collaboration with AP’s heritage expert Guillaume Dreyfuss.
